I can listen to a story and tell you the beginning,
middle, and end of the story.

Phonics

I can blend sounds together to read words.

Materials Needed: Letter cards a, t, s, m, b
Letter cards can be made with index cards or paper.

Phonics: I can blend sounds together to read words.
Using the letter cards, display the word at. Have students sound out /a/, then /t/. Have students reread the word at as they would speak it. Repeat the routine with the words mat, sat, and bat.
Display the word ate. Have students sound out /ā/, then /t/. Use the blending motion to blend both sounds, and have students say the word ate. Have students reread the word naturally. Repeat the routine with the words mate and make. Ask, "What letter pattern is the same in all of these words?" a_e "What sound does it make?" /ā/ Contrast the short- and long-vowel sounds in words at/ate mat/mate Remind students that the letter pattern, or spelling, a_e makes the vowel sound for Long Aa.

Dictate a sentence: Sam sat on the mat.
Write the sentence as it is dictated. Talk about beginning capitalization and ending punctuation. Who is this sentence about? What is he doing? Where is he?

Perryman:

Optional Activity to Accelerate Learning Learning Target (1.RL.2): I can retell stories, including key details.

Task: After reading The Tiny Seed or another book on your reading level, practice the strategy, "Organize in a Sequence". Use the questions below to practice the strategy. Discuss the questions with an adult.

If time permits, retell the story using the prompts: first, then, next, after that, and finally. Write your answer or record a video of yourself. Share your thinking with your teacher or Ms. Perryman (tara.perryman@henry.k12.ga.us).

Strategy Questions:

- Tell me about your topic. Is there an order you should tell it in?
- Let's start with what happens first. What happens next?
- It sounds like there are events that connect. Let's put them in order - first, then, next, after that, finally.
